

Lady Makes Debut At Moyse Hall

The English Department will present "The Lady's Not For Burning", by Christopher Fry, as their opening production, tonight, Friday and Saturday, at 8:30 pm, in Moyse Hall.

Although set in the Middle Ages, "The Lady's Not For Burning" has a modern message and universal appeal. In his comedy, Fry combines farce and philosophy, cynicism and love. He sets a cynical ex-soldier and a young woman accused of witchcraft against the Mayor and Justice of a small markettown. The two social rebels fall in love; the representatives of law and order fall under the spell of April love, and in contriving his happy ending Fry laughs equally at his cynics, realists, conservatives and romantics.

RITCHIE DIRECTS

The play is directed by Harry Ritchie, director and producer of last season's "The Taming of the Shrew" and "The Flies". The cast is comprised almost equally of new-comers to the McGill stage and well known performers. Playing the lead role of Thomas Mendip is William Armstrong, who has been seen in "The Flies", "Murder in the Cathedral" and "Reign or Shine". Two other well-known comedians in the cast are Donald MacSween and William Lyons, both experienced Red and White Revuers.

NEWCOMERS

New-comers are Sylvia Bank, Jesse Dickson, David Francis, Robin Oulton, Ann Purdon and Jocelyn Kinsman. Michael Packard and David Wilson have both appeared in other campus productions. Althea Douglas is responsible for the costumes, while the setting is by Neil Madden and David Farley. Lighting is by Creighton Douglas and James Winder.

McGill Prof Deplores Frats, Religious Groups

by DENIS COUPLAND
News Editor

"The University should cease to recognize those organizations which foster division on racial, religious or national grounds and should abolish them from the campus."

In an exclusive interview with the Daily, Dr. Dalbir Bindra of the Psychology Department stated his views on the recent controversy concerning various forms of discrimination here and at other Canadian universities.

"The answer to this problem does not lie in the making of new rules but in the creation of new conditions which will make such acts impossible."

Dr. Bindra continued that it would be of no avail for the University to make a set of regulations governing fraternities, religious clubs and national clubs. They should no longer be accepted as an integral part of campus life and all official recognition, such as publication of reports on their activities in the Daily, should be withdrawn.

He realized "that such groups will still tend to form their own associations, but these should not be connected directly with McGill."

Many universities, notably Harvard and Princeton, took a definite stand on the matter and, against popular sentiment, abolished fraternities several years ago.

The professor cited religion as the greatest cause of discrimination, on all levels of social contact. He said that institutionalized religion could be described as a "harmful force" in the development of universal brotherhood.

People tend to identify themselves in their social relations according to their religious beliefs rather than their racial or national origins. An affront to their religion is considered as a personal insult and their relations with persons of a different religion are tempered by limitations set by their faith.

Dr. Bindra emphasized that the universities should show leadership in such matters, rather than being satisfied with the status quo.

SPECIAL INTEREST GROUPS

As a "constructive" alternative to the national and religious groups, Dr. Bindra advocated the large-scale creation of special interest groups, knowing no discriminatory boundaries. Some groups of this type are already in existence, outstanding among which is the fraternization of scholars. They have an immediate bond because of their common interests in some branch of learning, even though they may be of different colour, nationality, or religion.

On the college level, he suggested that clubs can be formed by persons who have similar pursuits such as research into and discussion of philosophy, music or photography. The histories of religious saints may even be used for a subject if the participants join on a non-denominational basis.

Dr. Bindra affirmed that this would necessitate "a new sense of values where religious affiliations are given low priority and associations on special interests are given high priority."

NEW VALUES

Dr. Bindra has been at McGill for the past ten years, joining the staff in September, 1949. He received his Ph.D. from Harvard in 1947 and taught in Washington, D.C. for two years. His particular field of research is motivation and the effects of drugs on behaviour. A book of his on the subject was released this year.

Union Delegates Return

The McGill delegates to the Association of College Unions Conference, held this year in New York City, have now returned to Montreal after an exhausting week-end.

The Conference, at New York University, apart from its primary function as the annual meeting of the Association of College Unions provided a suitable occasion for the opening of the Loeb student Centre of New York University.

This building, situated on the south side of Washington Square, serves as the centre of activities for the Washington Square Campus of the University. It was made possible by a gift of $1 million by the children of Carl and Adeline Loeb, in whose memory it is named.

BALANCED PROGRAM

Speeches and discussion groups formed the program of the Conference. In his opening speech, Mr. Nelson Jones, Director of the Memorial Union of the University of Maine stressed the importance of a balanced program for Union activities. The tendency to sponsor only those programs with a mass appeal, he thought, was a great disservice to the whole Union Movement.

Lack of support for the less popular meetings would mean that the benefit that students could derive from educational and cultural extra-curricular activities would be seriously diminished. The younger generation, Mr. Jones stated, was prone to avoid anything which looked as if it might tax their intellect. The secret lay in constantly exposing them to worthwhile activities and for this reason interest in Art Rooms, Music Rooms and Browning Libraries would be encouraged.

KHAN APPOINTED

McGill's delegates sponsored a discussion group on "The Union's Role in Educational Services". They opened the discussion with short talks on various topics connected with our own Students' Union. After this the other universities and colleges joined in an attempt to evaluate the respective programs. Here it was found that there was a difference of ideas of the functions Unions should fulfill.

At the Conference Zafar Khan, President of the Students' Union, was appointed to the Regional Board, the Executive of the Association of College Unions.

Zafar Khan, commenting on the Conference, said, "The American delegates were very impressed with the wide variety of educational programs which are held in our Union. This should in some way prove an inspiration to us to continue to evaluate critically the benefits derived from some of our events. Perhaps the Americans should be thankful that in this particular case the Canadians are the ones who are ahead, instead of the Russians."

Pearson Opens MCWA

The Hon. Lester B. Pearson, Leader of the Opposition in Parliament, Nobel Peace Prize Winner, and former External Affairs Minister, will deliver the opening address at the McGill Conference on World Affairs on Tuesday, November 17, in Redpath Hall.

STATESMEN SPEAK

An even more successful Conference than last year's has been planned for the 100 delegates from leading American and Canadian Universities. The subject "Afro-Asia: The Problems of Underdeveloped Countries" will be treated in four days of round table discussions and panel debates, which will be chaired by members of the Faculty of McGill and representatives from the Department of External Affairs. The delegates, containing a strong representation of Afro-Asian students, will also have the opportunity of hearing the views and ideas of distinguished international statesmen, who will speak at evening sessions and banquets.

On Wednesday evening, Andrew Cordier, Executive Assistant to the Secretary General of the U.N. and advisor to the President of the General Assembly, J. N. Sahni, Vice-President of the World Federation of the United Nations and member of the Indian Delegation to the U.N., and Dr. Hans J. Morgenthau, Professor of Political Science at the University of Chicago, former consultant to the U.S. State Department, and author of many works in the field of Political Science and International Law, will join in a panel discussion on "Afro-Asia and the Cold War", chaired by Keith Callard, graduate of the London School of Economics, Associate Professor of Political Science at McGill, and author of "Pakistan—A Political Study".

SMITH INTERVIEWS

Following a banquet in Douglas Hall on Thursday evening, the Conference will be addressed by Dr. Arthur Smithies, Professor of Political Economy at Harvard, former Chief of the Economic Board of the U.S. Bureau of the Budget, and Director of the Fiscal and Trade Policy Division of the Economic Co-operation Administration in 1948-49.

On Friday, a recorded interview between Mr. V. Krishna-Me-non, Defense Minister for India and delegate to the United Nations, and Stuart Smith, Chairman of the Conference, will be played back and commented upon by Dr. Michael Brecher and Professor Keith Callard, both Associate Professors of Political Science at McGill.

Following a final luncheon banquet in Redpath Hall, the delegates will be addressed by Sir Leslie Munro, Commonwealth Statesman, Past President of the General Assembly of the U.N., New Zealand's Ambassador to the United States, and permanent delegate to the U.N.

Let's Take A Vote

There seems to be a growing modern tendency to forget or deliberately to omit to take a vote on specific issues. Not only does this usurp our democratic right of the vote but instils in the general populace a sense of disrespect for law, order, and good government.

While this is hardly the case here at McGill we have recently noticed two instances where a vote has been deliberately forestalled. Both concern the public debates held by the Debating Union. The first was the United Kingdom Champions — McGill Debate, the other the Student — Professor Debate. The reason, we suspect in both cases was one of "courtesy".

When a McGill team toured the U.K. last year a vote was taken in every case. The team was defeated at Cambridge but we do not think the losers regarded the vote as "discourteous". Rather, we suppose, they took it with a good natured "best men won" attitude. But when the U. K. debaters repaid McGill's visit no vote was taken, although according to the Canadian University Press the practice of calling a house vote has been observed at other points in their all-Canada tour.

In the second case, the Professor-Student Debate, had a house vote adjudged the students winners, we hardly think the professors would have been offended. Indeed, as scholars of English literature, the professors might even have considered it a fitting nemesis to the little drama which began when the two men on a television programme, heartily criticised a McGill debating team, in comparison with a British one. And if the students had lost before the mainly student audience it would merely have emphasized the statements made by their learned opponents. In either case, it would have been considered all in good fun.

But no, McGill must remain ever "courteous" to her visitors. Frankly, we would like to see a little less "courtesy" and a little more decision.

Hungary Hullabaloo

Many students on this campus signed a petition during the past week condemning Communist atrocities in Hungary. The plan is to send the accumulated signatures to the Canadian Department of External Affairs for forwarding to Prime Minister Khrushchev and possible United Nations action.

The prudence of initiating such a petition on the evidence available is to be questioned. The news that 18-year-old youths who took part in the 1956 Hungarian uprisings were being executed came from letters received by Hungarian immigrants and refugees presently in Canada. These were letters that had been smuggled across the Hungarian border. The letters were written by terrified and scarcely well informed people. Enough is known of conditions inside Russian satellite countries to realize that everything the government does isn't reported accurately and immediately to the people.

The petition has done something that is definitely worthwhile however. It has stimulated students to do more than sit and listlessly think about themselves. By the action of affixing their name to the sheet of paper students have expressed an unselfish and conscientious thought for the rest of the world.

Even if the petition is sent to Ottawa to rest in some minister's "pending" basket until the furor dies down, it has accomplished a purpose. Around this campus students have begun to talk about the situation and wonder.

Each student signing the protest used a democratic freedom. All the students across Canada uniting in a common protest exhibited another democratic freedom. The freedoms however are too valuable to be used on spur-of-the-moment action. If used sparingly and on carefully prepared occasions, a cross-Canada student petition could contribute a great deal to democracy's fight against Communism.

The petition that was circulated this week was founded on very vague facts. The future of the petition is even vaguer. It is well to remember the fate of the peasant chap who shouted "wolf" too soon and too often. The value of a united student movement could very well become submerged if its foundations and purposes are as precarious as the one just finished.

Letters to the Editor

Should Remember Minorities Too

Sir:

After attending the Remembrance Day services for the Christian soldiers who died defending our country I now recommend that additional services be offered for the Jewish and other soldiers who died who did not believe in "Christ our Lord".

In a university that fights like mad about the fact that some fraternities are discriminatory it is highly enigmatic to find that in the "non-denominational" service the prayers were offered in the name of "Christ our Lord".

It is true that this society is dominantly Christian but it is also true that this is a democratic society, the main belief of which is, the respect of the rights of the minorities. This is one instance, where gross disrespect was shown to the rights of the minority.

Stuart McMichael.

All For Sadie Hawkins Week

Sir:

Having read Mr. Hargreaves' interesting letter, published in the Daily on Tuesday, November 10, I would like to express my complete agreement. He has suggested that Sadie Hawkins week be introduced into McGill and I think it is a noble idea.

Surprisingly enough, even the girls are in favour with this idea, for they know that boys spend fantastic sums of money on dates each year. Also, they consider such a time as convenient to ask out some boy whom they had considered as desirable, who had been too shy to ask them, or simply had not noticed them.

As a practical suggestion why not have the class presidents, or the Union directors take a poll to see how many students are in favour. If the majority is in favour, then a special week should be designated.

I hope this letter will inspire some action, or some more letters.

Clarification Re SEC Grant to WUS

Sir:

I would like to correct an implication which appeared in your report of Tuesday's SEC meeting.

The statement is made that "The SEC last night voted to allot three hundred dollars as part payment of the one thousand dollars pledged by WUS for Japanese and Korean student relief."

The impression is given that the McGill WUS Committee has pledged one thousand dollars and is still looking for seven hundred. It should be made clear that the thousand dollars was pledged on behalf of WUS of Canada by the National Committee. As such, the SEC grant is not a "part payment" but a donation, and quite a generous one at that.

The McGill WUS Committee does not intend to take further action with respect to this emergency appeal.

Student Physicists Tour N.R.C. Labs In Ottawa

Last Friday, at 7 am, 26 members of the Students Physics Society met outside the Roddick Gates for the start of an all day tour of the National Research Laboratories in Ottawa.

Their bus, chartered for the trip, arrived at the National Research Council at 10 am, where the morning schedule opened with a short lecture on the need for Canadian students to take up positions in Oceanographic Research. After this, they were joined by five stray Sir George Williams students. The group now divided into two parties began touring the laboratories of the Radio-Engineering Building.

In one laboratory the students were given the opportunity of studying electron-trapping mechanisms responsible for fluorescence and other optical phenomena.

"Nuclear magnetic resonance" investigations, similar to those performed in McGill's Eaton Electronics Laboratory, were the last items on the morning program.

After a most welcome, free dinner, the group toured the Rockcliffe Park area in their bus. On the way to another section of the NRC in downtown Ottawa the guide, Dr. Kohr, informed them that a surprise trip down the Ottawa river in an ex-subchaser, owned by the Council, had been arranged.

The tour of the laboratories was delayed until 3:30 pm when the students hurriedly made their way through the acoustics and low-temperature laboratories where they met Dr. D.C.K. Macdonald.

With this ended the day's program. Only the return journey remained, as the club members boarded their bus for the trip east.

Intramural Highlights

by ED BIERBRIER

The touch football season officially ended with the Senior champions not meeting the Junior champs for an overall champion football team. The last game of the year saw the Phy Eps nip the Z.B.T. fraternity 7-6 on Tuesday at noon on the upper field.

Frank Rubin scored the lone Z.B.T. touchdown while Ralph Katchanoff picked up the Phi Ep T.D. Allan Axelrod passed to Ralph Katchanoff again for the convert which proved to be the margin of victory for the victors. The game was marred by several fistcuff actions. Early in the game Marty Nadell and Ronny Kupitsky were ejected for rough play. All through the game, rough playing was witnessed. Eventually Marty Wright was thrown out of the game. Talpis and Miller played well for the Phi Eps while Khazzam and Jack Kivenko fared well for the Zebs. Phi Eps supplied the referee as Arnie Barkoff did the chores.

The following day, Saturday November 13, at the University of Toronto, McGill is sending two men to represent the east. OAC are supplying the other three. McGill's two are Pete Adams and Pete Johnstone. They are reputed to be the tops in the east. They are to participate in the east-west harrier meet in the morning.

Freshettes Cop Crown

Bertha Kalifon and Roz Saginur swept through to the Badminton Doubles Crown by a 15-11, 15-5 win over Sheila Dalfen and Yvette Hoch in the finals.

Both Kalifon and Saginur, newcomers to the McGill athletic scene, are graduates of Outremont High, where they had never teamed up in badminton play. The two should go a long way in badminton circles. Only last week did Kalifon nab the runner-up position in the singles tournament.

In the first game of the semi-finals, they fell behind 7-1 before catching up and then eking out an 18-13 win in extra points. The second game of best of three game series saw Kalifon and Saginur handily downing their opponents 15-5.

The pair met Yvette Hoch, President of the Badminton Club and Sheila Dalfen in the finals. Again they fell behind 7-1, then tied it up and served three straight points for a 15-11 win. The second game of the set which turned out to be the winner, saw the novice pair completely humble their opponents 15-5 with good placements, shots and net play.

Next week, a mixed pairs tournament will be held and anyone is eligible to team up with a male for the draw. McGill, as well, is planning to enter eight men and eight women in Murray league play which will feature tournaments against such clubs as the MAAA and the Montreal, Badminton and Squash Club. The intercollegiate tournament will be held after Christmas.

Woody Wins Cooking Contest

A new cooking record was set here this week. Max K. Woody, an honours student in graduate cooking broke the existing record and set a fantastic new one. Max K., as his friends affectionately call him because they don't know what the "K" stands for, did many amazing things to set the new mark. First, he concocted a new non-alcoholic beverage composed chiefly of paper and glue; then, Max K. added alcohol to come up with the first alcoholic drink composed chiefly of paper and glue. Although Max K. would not reveal the components of the new beverage he did mention that it was brown paper that added the wonderful flavour. Max K. really showed his stuff when he added inspiration to water and called the new brew "perspiration water". People who tasted this stuff said it was "out of this world", but the Red Cross was definitely against it.

Max K. gained his early experience in the art of cooking when, as a freshman, he averaged 95% in his laboratory courses. He proved that he had talent in this field by compiling an Undergraduate Cook Book which he sold to students for a very reasonable price.

Sports Anyone?

The Daily Sports Staff has dwindled to less than is required to run a decent organization. We realize that the great majority of students at McGill are about as energetic as a bottle of American beer. Try spending less time on useless women, less time on nothing, and more time doing something constructive, something which, you will find will take no time from studying. It has been proven that a fair portion of time on extra-curricular activities is spent at the expense of time which has been thoroughly wasted. Try to crawl out of your sick, lazy, apathetic holes and try to do something constructive aside from your work for a change. You may find that it will be an enjoyable experience.

Both Sports and News staffers are needed (both sexes). You may not be Editor-in-chief in two months, but with the present situations, advancement will be rapid. Come in and see us any day between 1 and 2 pm, even if you only wish to discuss and observe.
